St. Louis, MO / (314) 444-7744

Allison Schultz advises clients on transactional, regulatory, and securities matters across a range of industries.

Allison is an associate in the Corporate Department of Lewis Rice. She has a general business law practice and focuses on various corporate matters. Prior to attending law school, where she graduated first in her class, Allison worked as an intelligence analyst for Caterpillar Inc. in its Law, Security, and Public Policy division, providing geopolitical risk analysis on Europe, Africa, and the Middle East, as well as due diligence, legal, and reputational risk support.

In law school, Allison served as a teaching assistant for first-year students and completed externships with Anheuser-Busch and ArchBridge Family Office, gaining hands-on experience in corporate and business law.
