St. Louis, MO / (314) 444-1369

Miranda Nolan represents clients in intellectual property disputes, drawing on her background in chemical engineering to navigate complex technical issues in litigation.

Miranda is an associate in Lewis Rice's Litigation Department, where her practice focuses on intellectual property disputes. She represents clients in patent, trademark, and trade secret matters, often involving highly technical industries. With a background in chemical engineering, Miranda brings a unique perspective to her cases, allowing her to engage effectively with complex subject matter and provide informed legal counsel.

Her combination of legal training and technical knowledge supports her work in protecting intellectual property rights and advocating for clients across a range of industries.
